INTRODUCTION

The docuplus S&I Products and Services Code has been developed with the intention of compiling the different products and services contracted by the differing companies from the services industry sector that are subscribers in docuplus S&I.

Any product or service that appears in the docuplus S&I system must be associated with one of the categories of this code, and every registered company will demonstrate at least one product or service.

GENERAL STRUCTURE OF THE CODE

The general structure of the code is as follows:

1. Goods & Products
2. General Business Services & Works
3. Sector Specific Products
4. Sector Specific Services & Works

These 4 groups are divided into different sub-groups, and these in turn into specific categories. All products or services must be represented under a specific category, that is to say, by being assigned a third level code (for example, 1.01.01).

Some categories have also an additional field. If you select one of these categories, you should select as well at least one of the offered options.

CATEGORY SELECTION

You should first identify whether the item you are seeking to register is included within the Goods & Products group (1), the General Business Services & Works (2) or would be better represented as a Sector Specific Products (3) or as a Sector Specific Services & Works (4).

You should then identify the sub-group or sub-groups where the item that you wish to classify could come under. The index to this document can help you with this.

Finally, you need to select the category or categories that are most suitable for the services that your company provides. Such services should be described in your own words in the Description field of the on line questionnaire.

The questionnaire includes a tool for locating categories by literal forms of search. It is enough to suggest one word (or part of it) when the category is selected, and the program will show you all those that contain the characters in your title.

If you cannot find a specific category that correctly represents the product or service offered by your company, Achilles always revises your questionnaire before approved and exported to the users, and if it is detected that any product or service has not been properly classified, you will be informed of this. For this reason, the description field of the questionnaire is essential so that both the users and Achilles are able to know exactly the type of product or service offered.

HELP

A help field is included in this version of the Code. This brings together some of the products or services that could be included in each category, or any other consideration that may help when it comes to selecting the most appropriate one. It can also be used as a guide for completing the description field of the questionnaire. This help field is not excluding by nature, that is to say, there may be other products or services that come into the category in question that are different from those mentioned. In any event, it is important to specify in the description field which of the products/services included there (or others) are supplied or carried out.
